Our City Election.

Next Monday, the voters of Portland will decide how the city shall be governed during the coming year There are many reasons why the election is one of grave consequence Aside from the importance which always belongs to municipal legislation, affecting valuable interests and involving the collection and expenditure of large revenue, and from the desire, which every good citizen ought to feel, that none but competent and faithful men shall occupy official positions, there is now pressing upon us, the necessity to make such wise amendments to our charter, as shall make it promotive of the best prosperity of the city in all respects For years, the complaint has been made, that the Mayor and City Council had no power to effect necessary legislation, and public improvements, eminently desirable, have never been made because there was somehow a lack of authority to accomplish them This ought no longer to be so The Legislature will be in session the present year, and we cannot doubt that it will cheerfully make such amendments to the charter, as will enable the authorities to do whatever is necessary to secure the general welfare and advancement of the city. We want, therefore, an intelligent and honest Council, who will prepare the proper amendments, submit them to the people, and secure their approval by the Legislature. If this is not done now, we shall be compelled to blunder on, for two years more, at the "poor dying rate" which has hitherto prevailed, which pleases nobody, accomplishes nothing, and makes the system a farce and an occasion for expensive and useless litigation The duty of every voter seems, therefore, to us to be plain indifference must cease all ought to feel, if they care for the prosperity of Portland, that the best men should manage the affairs and the interests of the city.

The nominations made last Monday, as we have already stated, are entirely worthy of universal support. No better man than Mr Failing can be found for the office of Mayor Everybody admits this. Mr Mulkey, named for Recorder, is a man fully competent to perform the duties of the position He has no entangling associations, which can warp or affect his honest judgment and will be a faithful officer. Like many young men of Oregon, who desire better educational advantages,—after a long residence here, he went East to study, and returned two years ago, and for the last year, has been an active and intelligent citizen of Portland If elected, we are confident, that he will prove to be one of the best magistrates we have ever had To the rest of the ticket, so far as we know, there can be no reasonable objection. Doubtless there are personal preferences and aspirations, but is it well to regard these when a nomination so unexceptionable, is offered? We are not aware that there can be any charge of unfairness made against it, and as it presents the names of good men, suggested in the largest meeting ever held for such a purpose, we think the voters of Portland will act wisely in adopting it Will they not be exposed to great risks by rejecting it? The question of a good municipal government is at stake. He acts prudently, who makes the issue sure, by voting for those who are competent, and who have been fairly nominated by a convention representing the various sections and interests of the city, not should it be forgotten that all of them are unconditional friends of the Union, true and steadfast under all circumstances In this respect, they have merits, which should not be disregarded Portland is as faithful to the Republic and to freedom as any city on the continent, and no man ought to be elected to any office here, whose loyalty is doubtful

MR. MCBRIDE'S VOTE.—On Tuesday, we gave the vote on the resolution to amend the Constitution, as having been taken on the 15th of March It should have been the 15th of February It is quoted from the Boston Journal of the 20th February, and we have no doubt that it is entirely correct. The mistake as to the date was accidental, but of course does not affect the fact of the vote.

News by the Steamer

WASHINGTON March 22 —In the House Elliott from the Committee on Commerce reported a bill which passed authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to stipulate for the release from attachment or other process, property claimed by the United States —in other words to enable the Government to arrange for the use of property it wants without waiting for legal process

The House passed the Senate bill authorizing the President to negotiate with certain Indians in southern Oregon for the acquisition of land and appropriating $20 000 therefor

The Senate has passed the bill amending the act relating coins and the coinage of cents The bill provides that the weight of the cent shall be forty eight grains that it shall be composed of ninety five per cent of copper and five per cent of zinc or tin It also provides for the coinage of two cent pieces of the same composition.

In the Senate Mr McDougall offered the following resolutions

Resolved, That the occupation of Mexico by the Emperor of the French or any person in heated by him as Emperor of Mexico, is an offence to the people of the United States

Resolved, That the movements of the Government of France and the threatened movement of an Emperor improvised by the Emperor of the French demand of this Republic, it insisted upon, war

CHICAGO, March 23 —Advices from Newbern, N C of the 19th say The recent raid on Richmond caused the rebel Gen Pickett to send several of his regiments from the State of Virginia, just as he was ready to commence operations in the direction These regiments are returning, however, evidently with a view of carrying out the original intention Gov Vance, in recent speeches stated that Gen Lee depends upon North Carolina for the support of his army He dwelt on the importance of keeping the railroads in good condition, on the ground that Lee could not remain in Virginia forty eight hours after they should fail to perform their mission

The Wilmington Journal, in speaking of the success of the blockade-runners in getting into that port, says Statistics of the past year show that, on an average, only one out of twenty has been captured

The report of Governor Vance showing the amount of rebel supplies received through this blockaded port, discloses the most startling state of thing Everything the enemy could ask for is received through this channel in great quantities An experienced naval officer has remarked that owing to the situation of the coast, its numerous channels embracing an area of thirty miles the entire navy of the United States could not make the blockade of Wilmington effective

Hon W W Holden is out in a card announcing himself the conservative candidate for Governor of North Carolina.

A special to the Times say Gen Grant arrived yesterday and proceeds at once to the front The re organization of the army will be quietly and speedily consummated Gen W F Smith, whom the Senate confirmed as Major General to-day, will have command of the East next to Grant His position will really be Chief of Staff to the Lieutenant General, and as such will direct the movements of whoever may be nominally in command of the Army of the Potomac

It is understood that Gen Grant, after reorganizing the army to his satisfaction, will give the rebels a taste of his fighting qualities before he returns to the West.

The House Military Committee had under consideration to-day the question of reimbursing the States for moneys expended in calling out the State militia, and finally instructed Mr Garfield to prepare a bill providing for the appointment of a commission, who will be empowered to settle all claims arising in the several States upon this subject.

Deserters who came in yesterday, represented that Lee had ordered all the wagons to be in readiness for use on April 1st.

The Committee on Indian Affairs have recommended an appropriation of a million dollars to indemnify the people of Minnesota for the losses sustained during the Sioux war

NEW YORK, March 24 —Hilton Head advices state that on Thursday, the 10th, a new iron-clad was successfully launched at Charleston She is called the Ashley This increases the iron clad fleet in Charleston harbor to seven vessels She is described as formidable vessel, with many improvements on former efforts The rebels have mounted six rifled guns on the casemates of Sumter bearing on the channel, to prevent the advance of our gunboats The Confederates report the capture of Fort Powell, near Mobile, by Admiral Farragut. Date not given

New Orleans advices to the 16th state that the Executive Committee called a meeting to be held on the evening of the 15th, to elect immediate emancipation delegates to the Convention The same Committee passed a resolution recommending voters at preliminary meetings to support no man not favorable to immediate emancipation.

No armed rebels are heard of in the vicinity of the river, they having, it is said, abandoned that mode of warfare for the present.

Smith pressed forward to Yellow Bayou, where strong fortifications had been erected, but the rebels again fled The enemy was pressed and some skirmishing occurred, resulting in the capture of several persons and a small wagon train At daylight yesterday the entire command started for Fort De Russy, twenty-eight miles distant, and at four in the afternoon the 3d and 9th Indiana batteries opened on the Fort, which replied vigorously with three of its heaviest guns. The cannonade continued for one hour, when Gen Smith ordered a charge on the enemy's rifle pits, and to storm the Fort The 1st and 2d Illinois, 58th, 119th and 89th Indiana and 24th Missouri, charged over deep ditches and thick abattis amid a galling fire, and within twenty minutes after the order to charge was made, the Federal flag was planted on the enemy's works Three hundred and twenty five prisoners, including twenty four commissioned officers, were captured, with eight guns, a lot of small arms and an immense quantity of assorted ammunition a large quantity of commissary stores were also captured De Russy is a formidable work, quadrangular in shape, bastions and bomb proofs, covered with railroad iron A powerful water battery is connected with the fort, the casements of which are capable of resisting shot and shell of the heaviest calibre. About 800 negroes were for one year constructing the earthworks The destroying of them will commence to-morrow, and it will take three thousand men two or three days to complete it.

Admiral Porter has been busily engaged the last three days in removing obstructions from the Red River, consisting of rafts and piles driven in the channel. Transports are now proceeding up the river without interruption.

THE NEW FIVE FORTY LOAN

NEW YORK, March 23.—A special despatch to the Times says Secretary Chase has decided to put the forty five loan into the market at once, and the preparation of the bonds has commenced The issue of the two year five per cent. coupon Treasury notes will be discontinued. Notes bearing the same interest, payable at maturity, without coupons, will be issued instead of coupon notes, which will be retired as fast as received in the Treasury The Sub Committee of Ways and Means will report an entire supplemental tax bill on Tuesday next

MCDOUGAL ON MEXICAN AFFAIRS

NEW YORK March 23.—A special despatch to the Commercial says that McDougal addressed yesterday to force before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations of which he is a member, some sort of a report, either for or against the French invasion of Mexico Failing in this he fell back upon the resolutions which he subsequently introduced, and upon which he will endeavor to speak in a few days insisting that it is the duty of the government to interpose in behalf of Mexico, even at the risk of war

SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE DAILY OREGONIAN

LATER FROM THE EAST.

Dates to March 28th.

NEW YORK, March 27 —The obsequies of Owen Lovejoy took place yesterday in Brooklyn His body will be taken to Princeton for burial

The Herald's special says, Gen. Blair is about to resign his seat in Congress to join the army

Indications are that Grant desires McClellan and Fremont to have commands

The World's special says the Ways and Means Committee coupled the whole of Monday on the tax bill

Reports from Richmond state that the rebel plans have been changed the reelection of Tennessee and Kentucky

Jeff Davis believes Richmond impregnable and the bulk of the rebel forces will be concentrated at the West, where they intend to reoccupy Chattanooga, West Ohio and again clear the Mississippi

NEW YORK March 28 —The Commercial's Washington dispatches say that exertions are being made to postpone the meeting of the Union National Convention from June until September and the place of meeting from Baltimore to Cincinnati

MILWAUKIE March 28 —The Union Convention at Madison to day, elected delegates to the Baltimore Convention and unanimously instructed them to go for Lincoln as the nominee

ST LOUIS March 28 —A special from Charleston, Coles County, Illinois, says the Copperheads came into that town to attend court yesterday with guns concealed in their wagons and armed with pistols Some of the soldiers in the court house were drawn into an affray and a general fight occurred The County Sheriff sprang from the Judge's stand and commenced firing his pistol at the Union men. The Union men being outnumbered at the court house ran to the adjoining houses and searched for arms and they were firing from doors and windows Ten or twelve were wounded Col Mitchell, of the 54th Illinois, was wounded with several soldiers of the same regiment Several companies of the regiment arrived in the afternoon and were formed around the court house Detachments were sent in pursuit of the gang of Copperheads, about seven miles distant About twenty of the prominent secessionists implicated in the affair are under arrest

CHICAGO March 30 —Detachments of the 54th Illinois, left Charleston, Illinois, on Monday night, to attack 300 rebels intrenched at Galleday's Mills, ten miles North East of Charleston A portion of the same regiment is stationed at Mattoon for protection

In the fight at Charleston, two Union men were killed, also, Col Mitchell and five privates were killed. There were two copperheads killed and several wounded, who were taken off by their friends

CHICAGO, March 30 —The troubles in Coles county was more serious than at first reported A force sent from Mattoon pursued the insurgents who left Charleston and succeeded in capturing 30 persons They were brought to Mattoon when the copperheads from the adjoining counties collected and avowed the purpose of releasing their friends Reports as yet obscure, but it is know that a considerable force is intrenched twelve miles from Charleston, under the command of the sheriff of Coles county He has been joined by a band of desperadoes from Edgar county under command of the sheriff of that county A spy sent out by the insurgents was captured in the vicinity of Mattoon in the afternoon He confesses that there is a large force of rebels at Copachin's Mills, ten miles south, and another force eight miles west of Mattoon The 41st Illinois have been ordered from camp Chase

Dispatches from Mattoon, dated midnight, say scouts just in, report a force of 1500 rebels within three miles of that place an attack is expected to night It is believed that with the united efforts of the citizens and soldiers, the place will be held until the arrival of reinforcements in the morning The excitement is intense The number of insurgents are probably exaggerated

OLD GRIZ —Who that has lived in Portland for the past eight years, does not know Griz," the famous St Bernard and Sitka dog owned by Robert Pittock, corner of Morrison and First streets? And who, knowing him and his excellent qualities, will not be sorry to hear of a sad misfortune that befel him Thursday night or Friday morning, in the vicinity of the Oregon Market? He was shot through the left eye, by some person unknown at the time and place indicated, and lay in a helpless situation until he was removed to the store of his master yesterday, where he now is in a critical condition "Griz" was brought from San Francisco at an expense of $100, and during his career has saved the lives of persons from drowning He had turned the scale of life some time ago, and is now an old dog His last weight was 90 pounds

APRIL FOOLS —The customary amount of jokes were passed around yesterday, among our citizens, upon the recurrence of the first day of April, and many of them very good ones At the dinner table of one of our prominent men, the knives and forks had been stitched to the cloth, and the attempt to take them up being foiled, cast a suspicion in the minds of the uninitiated members of the family that other "sells" might be prepared and set upon the table, in consequence of which impression several choice dishes remained untouched, that may be presented to day at the same hour, verifying the saying that—

"All Fools Day is past,
And who is the greatest fool at last."

THE SUNKEN STEAMER —The present appearance of the steamer Maria bears a strong resemblance to a wreck, and such she must be considered The hurricane deck is being chopped away, on the river side, in order that the windlasses may be set in position to work and for the short time she has been under the water, the whole upper works are greatly destroyed But that makes little difference now Capt. Turnbull wants her machinery, only and by that time we guess her "bottom" will be sufficiently "Americanized" to make a good flat boat

STILL OPEN —The same bad hole in Front street, which caused the death of a valuable horse on Thursday, is still open for another one, and no doubt will trap a number before it is repaired [illegible] at part of the street is traveled more than any other portion of the city It would be a fine place for some good sportsman to stand armed, ready to dispatch the unfortunate animals, so soon as their limbs are broken, and would afford some "special artist" a fine sketch of how we get along in the commercial metropolis of a rich State like Oregon

IS SMOKING INJURIOUS?—Yesterday while the sun, in its bright glowing between the beating rain storms created great effumability on the side walks and streets, a knot of citizens had gathered at the corner of Front and Washington, and were discussing whether or not smoking was injurious The affirmative had the best of the subject, until a negative argumentor attracted attention to the fumes and vapor flying off from the streets, when it was admitted, in that case at least, that smoking was not injurious

A QUIET "STEAMER DAY"—We are having ocean steamers in Portland so often, that it has about ceased to create any extra amount of business when one arrives, except among the draymen and shippers The steamer now in port brought about three hundred tons of freight, most all of which is for our own merchants, yet, aside from the usual work of receiving these goods, there is nothing doing to give our city a business like appearance It may be set down as a "quiet steamer day."

PRECINCT MEETINGS —The attendance at the different precinct meetings last evening, was full, and the proceedings harmonious The following nominations were made in the different Wards for the Council 1st Ward, A. M Starr, T J Holmes, A. B. Hallock. 2d Ward, Wm H Bennett, Ira Goodenough, Thos Robertson. 3d Ward, Thos Frazar, Israel Graydon, A Hurgren.

RETURNING FROM THE FIELD —About fifty passengers came down on the steamer Senator from Oregon City, last evening, among them several of the Union State Convention Delegates, returning from the late contest at Albany Those whom we have seen express themselves amply satisfied with the trip, and its results.

PORTLAND ACADEMY AND SEMINARY —We were somewhat mistaken yesterday, in regard to the school exercises at the Portland Academy and Female Seminary It was the close of a quarter, but there was to be no general exhibition A new quarter commences on Monday, with Miss McGee and J G Dear as assistants

THE DUNBAR STEAMER.—The present appearance of the steamer Maria bears a strong resemblance to a wreck, and such she must be considered. The hurricane deck is being cleared away, on the river side, in order that the Heroine may be set in position to work, and for the short time she has been under the relief, the whole upper works are greatly denuded. A GOOD "STEAMER DAY."—We are having steamers in Portland so often, that it is hardly necessary to create any extra amount of excitement when one arrives, except among the merchants and shippers. The steamer now in port brought about three hundred tons of freight, almost all of which is for our own merchants, yet, aside from the usual work of receiving goods, there is nothing doing to speak of in the city, a business like appearance. Those whom we have seen express themselves amply satisfied with the trip, and its results.

PORTLAND ACADEMY AND SEMINARY.—We were somewhat mistaken yesterday, in regard to the school exercises at the Portland Academy and Female Seminary. It was the close of a quarter, but there was to be no general exhibition. A new quarter commences, on Monday, with Miss McGee and J. G. Dearborn as instructors.

TWENTY THOUSAND MORE.—Mr. West, of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, brought gold dust in the amount of $30,000, by the Hunt last evening. There was no connection above Walla Walla. An Express from this city on Monday, goes through to Boise Basin.

THE WHAT CHEER.—The new hotel of Mr. O'Connor has so far neared completion that the proprietor has already commenced to furnish many of the rooms, and will be able to open it for the reception of guests by the 15th inst.

NEW OFFICE.—Dr. Chapman has become a neighbor of ours, having fitted up a fine office in Carter's Block, second story, opposite the Pioneer Hotel. Entrance on Washington street.

MILLINERY GOODS.—Mrs. James Levy, No. 97 First street, has received a large stock of dress and Millinery goods, by the steamer Pacific, to which end would invite the attention of Portland ladies, as well as the public in general. Her goods are of the latest and most fashionable patterns.

THEATRICAL.—A copy of the celebrated play, "Leah the Forsaken," which is creating a great sensation in Europe and America, has been received by Mrs. Julia Dean Hayne, and will be produced during the coming engagement. It is said to be a play of startling interest.

Resolutions Adopted by the Union State Convention at Albany, March 30, 1864.

WHEREAS, The Constitution vests in the President of the United States the executive power of the Government, and commands him to see that the laws are faithfully executed, without making a limit to the manner in which these enacted powers are to be executed. It becomes his duty, under his responsibility to God and the people he represents, to guard the National honor against foreign assaults, and to maintain law and order against domestic insurrection. And the corresponding duty which honor and patriotism will never seek to evade, is equally imperative on all loyal citizens to stand by the Government while our National existence is in peril, to "the last dollar and the last man."

WHEREAS, In a Republic there can be no interest which is not subservient to the public good; no rights of person or property which are not subordinate to the public safety; therefore it is

Resolved 1st, That as the present slaveholders' rebellion was begun in abolition of the Constitution, for the destruction of the National Union—and in view of the atrocious modes employed by rebels and traitors attempting the commission of this National murder, we do heartily endorse and approve the measures put in force by this Administration to crush the rebellion, including especially the Emancipation Proclamation.

2d, That we are decidedly in favor of employing the emancipated slaves of the rebels to fight for the Union.

3d, That the Amnesty Proclamation for the benefit of repenting rebels, backed as it is by the splendid victories of our armies, has our cordial approbation as a peace measure, alike honorable and magnanimous.

4th, That we vote in favor of the re-election of Abraham Lincoln, and that we hereby instruct our delegates to the National Convention, to be held at Baltimore, to support the re-nomination of Abraham Lincoln to the Presidency, and instruct our Electors for President and Vice-President to cast the vote of this State for the nominees of that Convention.

5th, That we are in favor of those men only, for offices of profit or trust, who are of unconditional loyalty, and who will give an unqualified support to the Administration, to its efforts to crush out the rebellion.

6th, That if Congress shall submit an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, by which human slavery shall be forever abolished on American soil, we are in favor of the Legislature of Oregon supporting the amendment.

7th, That as our country is one geographically, and has been one in common history, she shall be one in a common destiny of Union and Freedom.

WHEREAS, The future growth and prosperity of our State and the adjoining Territories, depend to a great extent upon a direct communication with the Atlantic States by rail, therefore:

Resolved, 1st, That this Convention urges upon Congress the justice and necessity of a speedy construction of a Northern branch of the Pacific Rail Road, so located as best to promote the great and increasing mining and agricultural interests of our Northern Pacific possessions.

2d, That the subject of the foregoing resolution is recommended to the special attention of our Senators in Congress, our Representatives and the Delegates of Washington and Idaho, in the House.

WHEREAS, Mining is simply an industrial pursuit, its profits depending upon the amount of labor and capital employed, like other enterprises, and for the labor and capital employed, yields no greater results; to impose special burdens upon mines or mining, would tend to diminish the quantity of the precious metals produced, and correspondingly depress the many branches of industry encouraged and supported by mining operations—diminish the incomes of individuals and companies, and therefore the revenue of the Government; Therefore:

Resolved, 1st, That in the opinion of this Convention, a special tax on mines or mining, will not improve the revenues of the Government, while such a measure will operate injuriously upon the communities where the precious metals are found; and our delegation in Congress are requested to oppose such a measure.

2d, That the Secretary of this Convention is hereby directed to furnish our delegation in Congress with copies of these resolutions.

Whereas, A large and productive gold and silver mining district has been opened in Eastern Oregon, Idaho and Washington Territories, much of which is being developed by citizens of our State, and

Whereas, That convenience would be subserved by the establishment of a branch mint in Oregon, therefore—

Resolved That we earnestly recommend the establishment of a Branch Mint of the United States, in Oregon, and that the delegation in Congress be instructed to use all honorable means to procure the same.

Respectfully submitted,
T. H. PEARNE, Chairman.

MARKET REPORT AND REVIEW.

FRIDAY, April 1st—12 M.

The period under Review has been decidedly dull and transactions from first hands have been light. The rains of the past week have had a tendency to make the roads bad, and little produce has been brought into town by farmers.

The price of articles generally remains unchanged. Eggs are now held at 25 cents ₱ dozen. There is no amount of Oregon butter in market—fresh rolls retailed at 50 cents ₱ lb.

DETTER'S HAIR RESTORATIVE
FOR BALD HEADS.
IT IS NOT MY INTENTION TO HUMBUG THE PUBlic. This Restorative has built up a world-wide reputation upon its own merits, as is considered by those who have used it, to be the best article ever invented for the Hair. Read the following certificate:
LEWISTON, Sept. 3d, 1863.
This is to certify that I have used DETTER'S HAIR RESTORATIVE, and I take great pleasure in recommending it to the public as a safe and effectual preparation for the restoration of the Hair. I was nearly bald when I commenced the use of it, and after using two bottles, I find it has produced a fine, healthy growth of hair, and that, too, in less than two months. I can heartily recommend it for its excellency and efficiency. S. D. RAMSDELL,

Notice.
I, THE undersigned have this day sold out all my right, title and interest in the OREGON BAKERY to Messrs BYRNE & McGINN, who will carry on said business at my old stand

John Randolph of Roanoke.

(Concluded.)

"Mr. Randolph," exclaimed an acquaintance to him, hurrying to his side in the street, "I have tried my hardest to overtake you." "You will have to try harder than your hardest to keep up with me—Sir, to keep up with me!" exclaimed the orator, running off at the top of his speed.

He said of a person who refused to except his challenge upon the ground of religious scruples against duelling, that "he had skulked behind the communion table." He called the Greeks "Christless Christians." Of the new Constitution of Virginia, he said: "It was brought into life with the Sardonic grin of death upon its countenance."

A political opponent boasted on the stump, that if his mind was not naturally as strong as the orator's of Roanoke, he had done his best by an arduous collegiate course to improve it, etc.

"Not the first weak soil, gentlemen," exclaimed Randolph interrupting him, "that excessive cultivation has reduced to barrenness; let him stay at home—let him lie fallow, fallow."

A volume of such pithy sayings of his might be easily collected.

All accounts agree in praising the oratorial powers of Randolph. His manner was generally slow and impressive, his voice squeaking but clear and distinct, and, as far as could be heard, what he said was clearly understood. His gesture was chiefly with his long and skeleton-like finger. The impressiveness with which he used it has been remarked by all who have heard him. When he was sarcastic, amid a thousand it would say, stronger than any language, to the individual whom he meant, "thou art the man." In his choice of language he was very fastidious, making, sometimes, a considerable pause to select a word. His reading was extensive, and in every department of knowledge—romance, tales, poems, plays, voyages, travels, history, biography, philosophy—all arrested his attention, and each had detain him long enough to render him familiar with the best works of the kind. His mind was naturally erratic, and his desultory reading, as he never devoted himself to a profession, and dipped a little into all, increased his natural and mental waywardness. He seldom reasoned, and when he did, it was with an effort that was painful, and which cost him more trouble than it was worth. He said himself in one of his speeches in the Senate of the United States, that "he had a defect, whether of education or nature, was immaterial, perhaps proceeding from both—a defect that had disabled him, from his first entrance into public life to the present hour, from making a regular speech." The defect was, doubtless, both from education and nature; education might have, in some measure, corrected the tendencies of his nature, but there was, perhaps, an idiocracy in the constitution of the man, which compelled him to be erratic in mind as well as in temper.

He said that "ridicule was the keenest weapon in the whole parliamentary army," and he learned all the tricks of fence with it, and never played with foils. He seemed to have had more admiration for the oratory of Chatham than of any other individual—if we may judge from the manner in which that great man is mentioned in his speeches. They were certainly unlike in character—very unlike. Chatham having had bad health, and it being well known that he went to Parliament and made his best efforts while almost sinking from sickness; Randolph might have felt that, as he had done the same thing, their characters were assimilated. Chatham was seized with a fainting fit when making his last speech, and died a short time afterward. And probably it is not idle speculation to say that Randolph, with a morbid, or perhaps insane, admiration of his character, wished to sink as Chatham did, in the legislative hall, and be borne thence to die.

However, there was enough in the character of Chatham to win the admiration of any one who loved eloquence, without seeking in adventitious circumstances a motive for his admiration; and Randolph appreciated such talents as his too highly not to have admitted them under all circumstances, but his reverence was doubtless increased from the resemblance which he saw in their bodily conditions, and which he was very willing to believe extended to their minds. Chatham was bold, vehement, resistless—not often witty, but eminently successful when he attempted it; invective was his forte. In some of these points Randolph resembled him; but then Chatham's eloquence was but a means to gain his ends; his judgment was intuitive, his sagacity unrivaled, he bore down all opposition by his fearless energies, and he compelled his enemies to admit that he was a public benefactor in the very breath in which they expressed their personal dislike. Chatham kept his ends steadily in view, and never wavered in his efforts to gain them. Not so Randolph. He reminds us of the urchin in the "Lay of the Last Minstrel," who always used the fairy gifts with a spirit of devilry, to provoke, to annoy, and to injure, no matter whom he wounded, or when or where. Randolph did not want personal dignity, but he wanted the dignity which arises from consistant conduct, a want which no brilliancy of talent can supply. On the contrary, the splendor of high talents but serves to make such inconsistency the more apparent. He was an intellectual meteor, whose course no one could predict; but, be it where it might, all were certain that it would blaze, and wither, and destroy. As a statesman, it is believed that he never originated a single measure, through his influence often destroyed the measures of others. Some one observes, "that the hand that is not able to build a hovel may destroy a palace," and he seemed to have had a good deal of ambition of him who fired the Ephesian dome. As a scholar, he left nothing behind him, though his wit was various, and his acquirements profound. He seemed not to have written a common communication to a newspaper, without great labor and fastidious correction. I have been informed by a compositor who set a part of his speech on "Retrenchment," which he dedicated to his constituents, that emandations were endless. I have a part of the MS. of his speech before me; it is written with a trembling hand, but with great attention and punctuation, and with a delicate stroke of the pen. It was as an orator he shone; and as an orator his power of chaining an audience has been perhaps never surpassed. In an assembly where Demosthenes, Cicero, Chatham, Mirabeau or Henry spoke, Randolph's eloquence would have been listened to with profound interest, and his opposition would have been feared. As an orator, he felt his power—he knew that in eloquence he yielded a magic wand, and he was not only fearless of opposition, but he courted it; for who of his contemporaries has equalled him in the power of carrying on successfully the partisan warfare of desultory debate—the cut and thrust—the steady aim? who could wield like him the tomahawk, and who of them possessed the dexterity in scalping a foe? His trophies are numberless, and he wore them with the pride of his progenitors, for there was truly a good deal of Indian blood in his veins. It is said that Randolph first signalized himself by making a stump speech in Virginia in opposition to Patrick Henry; scarcely any one knew him when he rose to reply to Henry, and so strong was Henry's convictions of his powers, that he spoke of them in the highest terms, and prophesied his future eminence. Randolph gloriously said of Henry, that "he was Shakespeare and Garrick combined."

Randolph's character and conduct forcibly impress upon us the power of eloquence in a Republic. How many twists and tergiversations, and obliquities were there in his course; yet how much influence he possessed, particularly in Virginia! How much he was feared, courted, admired, shunned, hated, and all because he wielded the weapon that ruled the fierce democracy! How many men, far his superiors in practical usefulness, lived unhonored and without influence, and died unsung, because they had not eloquence. Eloquence is superior to all other gifts, even to the dazzling fascinations of the warrior; for it rules alike in war and peace, and it wins all by its spell. Randolph was the very personification of inconsistency. Behold him talking of the splendid misery of "office holders;" what did he want with office; a cup of cold water was better in his condition; the sword of Damocles was suspended over him by a single hair, etc., etc.; when lo! he goes to the frigid North—for what? For health? No; for an outfit and salary! and dies childless, worth it is said, nearly a million!

Randolph's oratory reminds us forcibly of Don Juan; and if Byron had written nothing about Don Juan, Randolph might have been called the Byron of orators. He had all the wit, eccentricity, malice and highmindedness of that work—its touches that strike the heart, and sarcasms that scorn, the next moment the tear that has started.

In a dying state, Randolph went to Washington during the last session of Congress, and although not a member, he had himself borne daily to the hall of legislation to witness the debate. He returned home to his constituents, and was elected to Congress, and started on a tour to Europe, if possible to regain his health; he said "it was the last throw of the die."

He expired in Philadelphia, where he had first appeared in the councils of the nation, in the sixty-first year of his age, leaving a reputation behind him for classic wit and splendid eloquence which few of his contemporaries may hope to equal; and a character which his biographer may deem himself fortunate if he can explain to have been compatible with either the duties of social life, the sacredness of friendship, or the requirements of patriotism, unless he offers as an apology, partial derangement. In the letter in which the deceased acknowledged that he had made a misstatement with regard to the character of Mr. Lowndes on the tariff, he assigned, as a reason for the error, the disordered state of his mind, arising from the exciting medicine he was compelled to take to maintain life.

"Remorse, remorse, remorse!" Shortly before he died he repeated the word three times, and requested the doctor to write it upon the back of one of his (Randolph's) cards, and to underscore the word, so as to make it emphatic. (Remorse!) "Put it in your pocket, doctor, and recur to it when I am gone. Remorse, remorse, remorse."

Yet was the ruling passion strong in death. The doctor was reading the Bible to him and mispronounced the word "omnipotence," accented it as though it were not a compound word—omni-potent. "Nipotent, nipotent, sir!" he exclaimed with oratorical energy.

I have, perhaps, expressed myself harshly, inconsistently with that charitable feeling which we should possess, who are "treading upon ashes under which the fire is not yet extinguished." If so, to express our conscientious opinions, is sometimes to do wrong.

Why draw his frailities from their dread abode?

For who can tell, in the close alliance between reason and madness which were so strongly mixed up in his character, how much his actions and words partook of the one or the other? Where they alternated, or where one predominated, or where they mingled their influence, not in their embrace of love, but in the strife for mastery, oh! how much he may have struggled with his mental aberrations and felt that they were errors, and yet struggled in vain! His spirit like the great eye of the universe, may have known that clouds and storms beset it, and have felt that it was contending with disease and coming death, yet hoped at last to beam forth in its brightness.

The day draws on, though storms keep out the sun
And thus the heart will break, and brokenly live on.

And so it is with the mind, and Randolph's "brokenly lived on," until the raven shadows of the night of death gathered over him, and gave him to the dark beyond.

MARRIAGES IN ENGLAND. — The London Athenæum has the following picture of English life:

In London and in every part of this healthy country, there are hundreds upon hundreds of persons of both sexes, who abstain from marriage because their means are narrow, and from early life to extreme old age exist as celibates on incomes slightly greater or less than the £300 per annum which "society" deems insufficient for matrimonial comfort and dignity. But the lives of such persons cannot be said to support the theory. The educated celibate, with a "comfortable income for a bachelor," who occupies chambers and frequents a Pall Mall Club, is as a rule, not less selfish and grasping than the paterfamilias who, according to the author, "be he lawyer, doctor, divine or man of letters, must needs, in all his ways and works, regard not the pure aim of his profession, but the pecuniary interests involved therein." Celibacy cannot be said to have raised the Roman Catholic priesthood above the moral level of our own clergy; nor can it be allowed that the maiden lady with a "genteel sufficiency" is in most cases a better Christian than the poor mother who by anxiety for her own offspring is taught to feel for every orphan child.

The proceedings in the Divorce Court have shown that unquestionable love matches are by no means exempt from wretchedness, and that women of fortune (who are under no necessity to marry for a maintenance) make unhappy marriages quite as often as girls without a penny." Nor does experience encourage a belief that women are disinterested just in proportion as they are placed above want. The heiress in a West End "set" is usually quite as anxious to seek advancement by matrimonial settlement as her penniless cousin, who has "nothing but marriage to look forward to." If poverty sometimes makes a girl say "I'll answer 'yes' to the first offer I get," the possession of independence quite as frequently induces a woman to think "I can afford to wait, so I will not marry until I have a really eligible proposal." As a rule, the poor parson's daughter, whose marriage portion is a modest trousseau, with a £20 note in her purse, is not a whit more calculating than any Miss Violet who has £20,000 at her command, and a score of suitors from whom to make selection.

Moreover, women whose circumstances secure them from the necessity of marrying to better themselves are especial objects of desire to men who, if not absolute fortune hunters, still desire not to marry without some advantage more substantial than woman's love. Thus, independence on the part of the fair sex would scarcely have the result anticipated. If it diminished their present inducements to seek for advantageous alliances, it would, on the other hand, increase the chance that they would be sought out by selfish worldlings, and lured into unions where love would not be the motive of either of the contracting parties. The sex might be less sinning, but it would be more sinned against; and marriages brought about by a base desire for gain would at least, be as frequent as they are at present.

Public Notice.
Sale of Town Lots in Port Angeles.
THE town-site of Port Angeles, situated in the Straits of Juan de Fuca, in townships 30 and 31 N of range 6 West, Willamette Meridian, in Washington Territory, having been reserved by the President of the United States, under the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved March 3d, 1863, entitled, "An Act for increasing the Revenue by Reservation and sale of Town-sites on Public Lands," and a portion of said town-site having been surveyed into urban and suburban lots in pursuance of the provisions of said Act, public notice is hereby given that said urban and suburban lots will be offered for sale at public outcry, to the highest bidder, by the Register and Receiver of the Land Office for the Olympia District, Wednesday, the 4th day of May, 1864, commencing at 10 o'clock A. M.; the sale to take place at the door of the Custom-House in Port Angeles, and continued from day to day between the same hours, till all the lots are offered. Any person having made bona fide settlement and improvements which are embraced within the boundaries of any lot prior to the 1st of May, 1864, upon furnishing the necessary proof of the fact to the Register and Receiver, on or before the day of sale, shall have the right—restricted to one lot—to bid for and purchase the same at the appraised value thereof; but any party who may challenge the bid on the ground that the settlement and improvements are not bona fide, shall have the privilege to compete with such settler in bidding, and if the highest bidder, the bid of the contestant will be admitted to record upon his tendering in payment the sum bid by him, the contest to be determined after the close of the sale.
Instructions as to the mode of conducting the sale and disposing of conflicts will be timely placed in the hands of the Register and Receiver.
Plats of the town-site of Port Angeles will be open to inspection of the public, at the office of the Register and Receiver at Olympia, and at the office of the Collector of Customs at Port Angeles, after the 1st day of March, 1864.
Land Office at Olympia, W. T., March 18th, 1864.
